Dance Camera West partners with UCLA Live to explore the rapidly growing genre of dance on film. In a lead-up to UCLA Live's presentation of the Holy Body Tattoo's monumental later this month, the Los Angeles Center for Digital Art hosts the screening of two visceral works from the Canadian company — known for creating intense and kinetically charged works. Tattoo's aesthetic fits snugly into the burgeoning genre, allowing for an intimate exploration of raw human emotion. Such sentiments are mirrored through the landscape of the human body as it is forced to the brink of its physical limits.
