

SEARCH BLOG

FLAG BLOG

Next Blog>>

Create Blog | Sign In

춤 CHOOM

DANCE, MUSIC, ART, THEATER IN THE WORLD

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 2009

Dance Camera West festival celebrates the genre with films

A man balances atop an electrical tower, a corpse delicately morphs back to life on a coroner's table, and a Zimbabwean cuts a graceful silhouette against the desert horizon: The films in this year's Dance Camera West festival testify that dance and choreography refuse to be confined to a theater. As Lynette Kessler, founding director of Dance Camera West, puts it, "Dance isn't just onstage, dance is everywhere."

Celebrating the "screendance" genre, the Dance Camera West festival kicks off this weekend with its eighth year of screenings. More than 30 films -- most made independently -- will be screened at half a dozen L.A. venues during the three-week fest.

POSTED BY ELLEN AT 1:07 PM

LABELS: AMERICAN DANCE, DANCE COLLABORATION

Newer Post

Home

Older Post